

THE GAY NATION

Homepage
 >Lifestyle
 Features
 News
 Health & Beauty
 Talkback
 Forum
 About

Subscribe via email

Travel
 Music
 Screen
 Top 10
 Books
 Money
 Arts
 Fashion
 Games
 >Design
 Perks

Double Trouble, Bath and Bubble

Enjoy a long candle-lit soak in the tub

by Cheryl Gumer

Bathrooms have traditionally been places for individual solitude and relaxation, but not this year. 2009 will see a focus on taking time out of your busy, hectic schedule and spending quality time at home in your sanctuary. If space is at a premium and you are looking to open up the bathroom space, then a wet room can be a perfect alternative. The increase in popularity of wet rooms over the past few years has given us at Bathrooms International the opportunity to expand our collections of fixtures and fittings ensuring we have the best collection available!

To fully enjoy a long candle-lit soak in the tub, I would install the Nara Infinity bath. It is spacious enough for more than one person and can also include chromatherapy and hydrotherapy that relaxes and revitalises the body, mind and soul – the ultimate in bathroom luxury. Not only does this bath have a very comfortable large headrest at one end but also the taps are outside of the main bath area so you have the entire bath space to yourself. The ingenious lattice overflow system allows for water to flow over the edge so that your body is completely immersed. A double bath can provide you with a chance to have a spa experience in the comfort of your own home. We also offer double-ended tubs and the Art Deco bath, a popular choice allows for two people to lie each end of the tub submerged whilst an overflow rim catches any water.

If time is precious, installing a wetroom is a great way of getting a quick spa experience. Not only do they look fabulous they are also very versatile. The focal point of any wet room is the showerhead you chose. It is key to remember to check your home's water pressure and the access of tanking the floor before you install, in order to appreciate the maximum effects of your purchase.

The Sky Shower is the most sought after and desirable shower this season. It comes as a single plate that is installed in the ceiling of your bathroom or shower enclosure and produces what can only be described as a tropical rain shower experience! By placing more than one Sky Shower plate next to each other you can also extend the water coverage and create a bigger area for you to bathe in.

For the gym enthusiasts out there, we offer a truly revolutionary showerhead called the 'sports' shower that provides a constant stream of powerful water that is perfect for massaging aching muscles after a hard work-out in the gym or a long day at work.

Words Cheryl Gumer, Creative Director at Bathrooms International.